Pharmacy Refrigerators

To meet the demands of the market, LEC have developed a pharmacy refrigeration range that provides an even greater accuracy when measuring temperature. LEC's new system always measures true vaccine temperature, rather than just the air temperature of the unit. This means your vaccines are safeguarded at all times. See the full °Control range on the °Control subsection.

Guidelines are getting stricter...

“Vaccines cost the NHS around £200 million a year. The loss of only one dose of Pediacel vaccine a month in each general practice would cost an estimated £4 million a year.”*

Various factors affect air temperature fluctuations:

- Refrigeration cycle
- Air circulation patterns
- Door opening
- Environmental conditions
- Defrost cycle

Probe

Less thermal mass is more susceptible to temperature fluctuations and therefore less representative of vaccine temperatures.

The °Control range comes with both an air temperature probe and a probe placed in solution representative to your vaccines.
